Hongkong, September 23, 1881. se30

observed and noted its symptoms, but he has never seen such alarming weakness so early induced in this affection as in the members of the French Mission. For this, it is, he remarks, difficult to suggest a reason; both priests and sisters have a simple, but sufficient diet, with a moderate allowance of wine, and they all seem satisfied with their work and mode of life. The monotony of their life, he remarks, is a serious depressing factor, and when this is added to the grave elements of the disease, it may be enough to account for the condition of absolute and almost immediate prostration, which declares itself when they suffer from typhus. This report notices a most curious thing, which we do not remember having ever seen in print before. Dr. Watson tells us that in the beginning of winter a good many cases of frost-bite occur in the crews of Siamese vessels, although such a thing as an European or Chinese sailor affected in the same way, is to him unknown. The Siamese are so sensitive to cold that they often suffer from frost-bite before the temperature is at freezing point, and if Siamese vessels did not leave Newchwang, before the severe winter comes on, frost-bite no doubt would be, Dr. Watson remarks, a frequent and serious affliction of these crews. He relates a case in which a Siamese vessel was sunk, about 4 miles from the coast of Corea, in about 30° north latitude. The chief officer and a sailor were drowned; the master and 16 Siamese reached the shore in a boat and a water tank, were kindly fed and supplied by the Coreans, were sent, on the backs of oxen or in carts drawn by oxen, to the Siamese territory, where they were handed over to the authorities of the Province, Dec. 20th. They continued their journey on foot, reaching Moulken in 7 days; remained a week there, being well treated and receiving each $5, and a sheep-skin coat. On January 17th, they resumed their march, and on the next day encountered what they described as a "fearful snowstorm," the first they had experienced in their travels. One of the Siamese died from exhaustion; on the 22nd the others arrived at Newchwang, and Dr. Watson saw them; the captain and several of the crew were slightly affected by frost-bite, and one of the latter as far back as 8th January, had complained that he was unable to move, in consequence of both his feet having lost their vitality. An attempt to restore sensation by repeated friction with snow, persevered in for several days, failed; and on March 7th, when his improved strength allowed, both feet were amputated at the lower third of the leg, and both stumps did well. None of the other Siamese suffered to such an extent as this unfortunate man from the exposure. A curious point is that two Siamese women and a child two years old suffered no evil consequences whatever, and the ten Chinamen comprised in the crew were quite well. A case of dislocation of the shoulder, in which reduction was effected after the extraordinary lapse of three months from the date of the accident, is noteworthy; the operation seems to have been eminently successful the joint being not only free from pain in 8 or 10 days afterwards, but nearly as useful as before the accident. During the year such accidents as sprained ankle, partial rupture of muscle, fractured ribs, lacerated hands—the latter requiring minor operations—etc., have occurred in Dr. Watson's practice on shore or in the shipping in the harbour; but, as none of them were of special interest, he merely names them to indicate the character of the routine work at this port. One death only occurred during the year, a member of the Customs out-door staff, who came from one of the river ports suffering from a number of ailments, dying, March 1st, from general wasting or phthisis. Two children were born during the year to brighten the fire-side and make happy the household of two European couples, stationed in this somewhat bleak, and inhospitable region of the north. Dr. Watson's report is concisely written, and forms solid and interesting reading; and one, from its personal much instructed and well satisfied.

The report on Cholera, by Dr. J. G. Brereton, also for the year ended 31st March, may, perhaps, be fitly grouped with the other reports from the far north. In this report, as in that from Newchwang, much importance is attached to the abstract provided of meteorological observations, for which the doctor is indebted to Mr. Jennings, Harbour Master. That register, he, however, admittably very imperfect owing to the absence of proper meteorological instruments and it gives a very inadequate idea of the real changes in the climatic condition of the station. Taking it for what it is worth, it is pointed out that it shows during the summer of 1880 a rather high thermometer; but as the heat was moderated considerably by refreshing sea breezes, there was even a cooler season than usual. The invigorating effect of a stay at Chioa was well exemplified during the summer in the case of a number of patients, who were out through malarial diseases, who visited the place, and after a stay of two or three weeks, had recovered their strength and were able to return to their homes in improved health. A doctor says that the one remedy he expected to produce permanent beneficial results. The cases which are most benefited by a stay at Chioa are those in which a protracted period of convalescence follows after any malarial disease, in which malarial elements have induced considerable prostration without much organic change in appearance. The winter, although prolonged, was not accompanied by the same degree of frost as previous years; storms were, however, more frequent. The health of the foreign and native communities was remarkably good throughout. Serious affections among foreigners were comparatively rare, and none of the few that did occur during the year were traceable to climatic influence. Two cases of lithemia are mentioned, arising from too free indulgence in meat; both quickly yielded to a change of diet. Four deaths occurred during the year, one from exhaustion, one from acquired phthisis; and two from meningitis, these last specified being both in weakly children, about 9 or 10 months old, the time when dentition would be in active operation. Two of the persons who died were residents, the other two visitors. There were five confinements during the year; in one case the child was still-born; in another twins were born, who are reported as progressing favourably. Dr. Watson's report is a brief business-like statement touching few moot points and affording little opportunity for praise on the one hand or adverse criticism on the other.

To-morrow, or as soon as the pressure of other matter allows, we shall summarise the contributions from the riverine ports, which may be appropriately grouped together.

We are informed by the Agents (Messrs. Adamson, Bell & Co.) that the steamship Fleur de Lys, from London, left Singapore to-day for Hongkong.

We are informed by the Agents of the Austro-Hungarian Lloyd's Steam Navigation Co. (Messrs. Melchers & Co.) that the Company's steamer Dido left Singapore last night for Hongkong.

We would remind our readers that the entries for the annual Aquatic Sports under the auspices of the Victoria Recreation Club, announced to be held on Friday and Saturday, this week, the 30th instant and the 1st proximo, close to-morrow afternoon.

Programmes have been issued since we gave a list of the events on Thursday last. The programme shows the division of the sports between the two days, which is as follows:—

First day: Diving for objects; short race, 2 lengths, open; header from stage; long race (8 lengths); running header from cross spring-board; hurdle race, six events.

Second day: Swim under water; short race, 2 lengths, handicap; plough; long race, 8 lengths, handicap; running header from middle spring board; calisthenics (fancy dress); and consolation race, seven events.

The prizes competed for are, in each event, $10 first; $5 second, and the last two events of the second day in each of which there is only one prize of $10. The sports commence each day at 4 p.m. The umpires are, Messrs W. Hynes, H. J. H. Tripp, and Dr. Clouth, and Mr. Beart is starter. We trust that the weather will be favourable, and that the Club may have as successful, and pleasant a meeting as has been the case the past few years.

An entertainment was held last night (27th) at the Temperance Hall, under the auspices of the Good Templars, the three Lodges of the Colony combining to make it worthy of the occasion, which was to mark the anniversary of the introduction of the Order into England. Rev. J. Booth occupied the chair. Over a hundred members of the Order and their friends sat down to tea, and after the tables had yielded up their abundance to the healthy appetites of those forming the large and social assembly, a pleasant evening was passed—the audience meantime increasing to some 200, a large number of whom were ladies—in carrying out a happy selected programme of music, vocal and instrumental, relieved here and there by some capital recitations. The ladies and gentlemen who kindly gave their services on the occasion were not confined to those who are members of the Order, Mr. J. D. Woodford, Mr. K. D. Woodford, and the Misses Woodford contributing not a little to the pleasure of the evening. Several of the songs and recitations given were of a tenor inculcating Temperance; and these seemed specially to secure the applause of the audience. There are now three Lodges successfully working in this Colony—the Hongkong, that in connection with the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, (the Inniskilling Lodge), and the Victoria Lodge, amongst which there are distributed over two hundred members.

The quarantine regulations issued by the Manila Government are somewhat strained, while at the same time we cannot help thinking that Aden and Kaghosima are at a rather long distance from either Manila or Hongkong, to necessitate the exercise of precautionary measures of so sweeping a nature. So far as Singapore is concerned, there might be a reasonable excuse for the stringency adopted, because the direct steamers from Europe to Manila may call at Aden. But even then, assuming such a steamer from Aden to be free of disease on her arrival at Manila, it is difficult to see what good can be done by imposing quarantine regulations such as those now published. Hongkong, however, is not liable to the dangers which might be furnished by Singapore, as the trade between Hongkong and Manila is of an almost purely local character. Indeed, with all deference to the opinion of the Manila authorities, we think that any obstacles placed in the way of trade, so far as this port is concerned, will be entirely at the expense of trade, while they will be altogether unnecessary on the score of health. It is earnestly to be hoped that, in view of the growing importance of the trade hence to Manila, any obstructions that are regarded as necessary for the protection of the public health will be considerably interpreted and liberally construed. This may be done with the more safety when Hongkong steamers are in question in view of the fact that the Health Officer—or, rather, his superior, the Colonial Surgeon—is known to be particularly keen in scenting such epidemical dangers as cholera and small-pox. Witness the recent proceedings against the vessels from Bangkok, upon which we commented not many weeks ago.

Police Intelligence.

(Before H. E. Woodhouse, Esq., Police Magistrate.)

A case comes before the Court to-morrow, on remand, which, although it has already been before the Court on one or more occasions, has not yet been noticed in either of the papers. As the first defendant is finally disposed of to-morrow, as far as the Magistrate's concern with it goes, it may very properly be briefly stated now.

Mo Alan, 50, wife of one Fong Ah Sing, and Leung Aho, 40, wife of one Sin Ah Sing, the former from Tung Kuo, and the latter from Macao, are charged, the first defendant with bringing into, and the latter with taking away from, this Colony for an unlawful purpose, the complainant, Lam Ahn, a girl, ten years of age.

The girl's story is substantially as follows. She is the daughter of Lam Ahn, a man residing in Shik Kip village, in Tung Kuo district; has no mother living; is 10 years of age. Had been living with her father in the village named until quite recently. One afternoon about the 7th September whilst she was playing by herself in a hedge orchard not far from her father's house, a woman whom she had known for some time, named Aseung, living in the same street, came up to her and asked witness to go away with her and her daughter; that she would have nothing to do; should wear nice clothing, and would have plenty to eat. She was persuaded by this woman, and went with her; did not like to say "No." Stayed in her house for about 4 days, and the first defendant came to the house, and witness heard Aseung telling her to take witness away from the house and sell her.

First defendant then took witness away to a small boat, where they stayed for one night. Next morning first defendant took her to a passage boat, and after two days' and two nights' voyaging in it, she found herself in Hongkong. Arrived in the afternoon, when the sun was about 60 feet from the hills. On arriving, first defendant took her to a house not very far away from the Magistrate's, where she stayed for one night. Next morning, was taken to a house where the second defendant was, and there she was sold to the second defendant for $50. Did not see the money paid, but heard that the second defendant had been in the house about two years and a-half. She was very good man, both as regards conduct and ability; in fact this was the first complaint against him.

His Worship addressing defendant, said: I am sorry you have been brought up on a charge of this kind. I am sorry that you have been so long in the hands of the law, and I am sorry that you have been so long in the hands of the law.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

upstairs into different houses and showed her to the people there, and asked her if they wanted to buy such a girl as this. People offered money, but they did not offer enough to satisfy the first defendant. When the second defendant bought her, it was the first time she had been offered for sale at that house. There were no other children with witness in these houses; she had been living in. Wanted now to go back to her father. Had no brothers or sisters. His father is an opium smoker and does not always stop at home. Grandfather and grandmother live next door, and uncle and aunt in the same house with father; was always quite happy at home. Father did not know anything about her going away with Aseung; this woman would not let her tell her people that anybody had asked her to go away from home.

First defendant said she did not know the girl.

Second defendant had no questions to ask.

The case, as we have stated, stands fixed for further hearing to-morrow, the 29th inst.

(Before H. E. Woodhouse, Esq.)
Wednesday, Sept. 28.

ALLEGED OBSTRUCTION OF THE POLICE.

Chan Shing Cheung, shopkeeper, was charged, on remand, by Keshal Singh, P.C. 654 with obstructing him in the discharge of his duty.

According to the story of the complainant he had been chasing a hawk, and had almost caught him, when the hawk ran into the shop of the defendant; complainant requested defendant to turn out the hawk, but he declined to do so. Complainant took the number of the shop and went away, when a gentleman came and asked him number. He referred to Mr. Loureiro.

Defendant said he remembered the P.C. coming to his shop, but no one was there.

To-day, Tang Apo, a shopman, in the Man Yik shop, Wing Lok Street said that on the 22nd of Sept. about half past one he saw the P.C. chasing a hawk outside their shop. The hawk got away and witness did not know where he went to. He did not come into the shop. He supposed the Constable thought the hawk had gone into the shop because his baskets were sitting outside the door. There was a crowd of people there.

Prisoner was discharged. The Magistrate said he had done quite right in taking the number of the shop where he believed the hawk had gone. He no doubt believed at the time that the defendant was obstructing him in doing what he considered justice. But he had failed to make out his case, and the Court must give the man the benefit of the doubt. He had heard the witness swear that the hawk never went into the shop. There was a great crowd and the constable might have been mistaken. He did not believe him for what he had done; but the Court could not convict on the case before it.

MISCONDUCT OF A POLICEMAN.

Keshal Singh, P.C. 654, was charged, with having used unnecessary violence towards a hawk.

Mr. Horspool, Acting Captain Superintendent of P.C. 654, stated to the Magistrate that a complaint had been made to him by Mr. Loureiro, Consul General for Portugal, of the conduct of this constable in arresting a hawk.

Mr. Horspool now asked the Court to hear the case. Mr. Horspool was then put in the witness box and sworn. He said defendant was a constable in the Police Force. In consequence of information received regarding his conduct in connection with the arresting of a hawk on the 22nd instant, he was charged with misconduct as a police constable.

Mr. José Loureiro, Portuguese Consul, said that on the 22nd instant, about two o'clock, he was on his way to the Macao steamer, and while in Wing Lok Street witness saw a large crowd. He stopped to see what was going on, and saw a constable with a Chinaman, holding him by his queue. He was kicking him and striking him with his truncheon. He was swinging him about by the queue. The blows were pretty hard. The man in his custody appeared to be a hawk, as two baskets containing shrimps were hanging from him. One of these baskets was overturned, and a quantity of the shrimps were lying on the pavement. The hawk did not appear to offer any resistance, but was calling out. Witness did not interfere then, as he found that he had just time to catch the steamer. On his way back from the steamer (where he had not been more than five minutes), witness, when he got to Wing Lok Street, found that the crowd had almost dispersed. The constable was still there, standing at the door of a shop, with a pocket-book and pencil in his hand, apparently asking the number of the shop. The hawk and his baskets had disappeared. Witness took the constable's number, as also the name and number of the shop, for the purpose of reporting the matter to the police, which he did, because he considered the conduct of the constable was "unjustifiable, inasmuch as he was using unnecessary violence. Witness was inclined to think that the constable let the man go because if he had been taken to the Police Station marks of the violence would have been found on him. The constable was hitting him with his truncheon and kicking him as hard as he could.

Prisoner denied striking the hawk. He had no questions to ask.

Chin Shing Cheung, said he was manager of the Man Yik shop. On the 22nd of September, witness saw the constable as above described, and saw defendant striking him with a truncheon. Witness did not see the hawk offered any resistance. The hawk was lying on the ground as if he had been severely assaulted; the constable let him go, and the hawk got away. The constable ran after him, but returned shortly afterwards, and said the hawk was in witness' shop. He took the number of the shop, and summoned witness for obstructing him in the performance of his duty.

Defendant made a statement to the effect that he had got a hawk in the sole of his boots, and his truncheon was lost, and if he had struck the hawk in the way described, marks would have been left. Why did not the hawk make a complaint? He did not see the hawk.

Prisoner (re-called) said defendant had been in the house about two years and a-half. He was very good man, both as regards conduct and ability; in fact this was the first complaint against him.

His Worship addressing defendant, said: I am sorry you have been brought up on a charge of this kind. I am sorry that you have been so long in the hands of the law, and I am sorry that you have been so long in the hands of the law.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

He then asked the defendant if she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before, and she answered that she had been in the hands of the law before.

this kind, by a constable, in the streets, reflects discredit not only on himself but on the Force to which he belongs. What such constable does, goes to form the general estimate in which the Force is held, and it is by the acts of individual constables that the general character of the Force is made up. You were quite right to ask this hawk, who seems to have been selling fish, which is prohibited by the Market Ordinance, for his license; but you seem to have made a mistake in thinking that a man who has committed a breach of the law is therefore entitled to be treated as roughly as the humour happens to suit you. He is quite as much entitled to be treated humanely as any individual man is; and every man is innocent until he has been proved guilty in the proper way. I do not wish to inflict a heavy penalty upon you, because I think you were acting more from hastiness than from any intention of doing wrong. I hope you will remember that such conduct is highly reprehensible, and that it will not be repeated by you or any other constables. I shall fine you $10, in default three weeks' imprisonment.

BURGLARY.

Lan You, Lai Ashun and Lan Afat, remanded from the 23rd inst., were charged with burglary and receiving stolen goods.

Yai Akang said he was a bricklayer reading at Tai Koi Yau. On the night of 12th September he retired to rest about 9 p.m. In the middle of the night he was awakened by his wife saying she had felt something touch her feet. Witness got up and struck a match, when he caught sight of a man escaping by a hole in the wall. Witness ran to the street door, but could see nothing. He found that the contents of a press had been removed. There were consisted of two jackets, some small shoes and pieces of cloth, as also an umbrella. He also missed five jackets and two pairs of trousers. Next morning witness reported the matter to the Yau-mah-i Station. On the following day he went to Sam Shui Po, and a jacket was found there which he identified. He had not recovered any more of the property.

Case was remanded to Thursday the 29th September.

THE CHINA REVIEW.

THE widely-expressed regret at the discontinuance of Notes & Queries on China and Japan, has induced the publishers of this journal to issue a publication similar in object and style, but slightly modified in certain details.

The China Review, or Notes and Queries on the Far East, is issued at intervals of two months, each number containing about twenty pages, occasionally illustrated with lithographs, photographs, woodcuts, &c., should the papers published demand, and the circulation justify, such extra matter.

The subscription is fixed at $5.50 postage paid, per annum, payable by non-residents in Hongkong half-yearly in advance. The publication includes papers original and selected upon the Arts and Sciences, Literature, Folklore, Geography, History, Customs, Natural History, Religion, &c., of China, Japan, Mongolia, Tibet, the Eastern Archipelago and the "Far East" generally. A more detailed list of subjects upon which contributions are especially invited is incorporated with each number. Original contributions in Chinese, Latin, French, German, Spanish, Italian or Portuguese, are admissible. Endeavours are made to present a résumé in each number of the contents of the most recent works bearing on Chinese matters. Great attention is also paid to the Review department.

Notes and Replies are classified together as "Notes" (head references being given, when furnished, to previous Notes or Queries), as are also those queries which through asking for information, furnish new or unpublished details concerning the matter in hand. It is desirable to make the Queries proper in brief and as much to the point as possible.

The China Review for July and August, 1876, is at hand. It says that forty-two essays were sent in to compete for the best paper on the advantages of Christianity to the development of a State. All our learned societies should subscribe to this scholarly and enterprising Review. It is a sixty-page, bi-monthly, repository of what scholars are ascertaining about China. The lecture on Chinese Poetry in this volume alone worth the price of the Review. Address: China Review, Hongkong.—Northern Christian Advocate (U.S.).

Frederick's Oriental Record contains the following notice of the China Review:—"This is the title of a publication, the first number of which has lately reached our shores, where it has been set on foot as in some respects a continuation of Notes and Queries on China and Japan, the extinction of which useful serial a year or two ago has been much regretted in Europe as well as in China. The present publication, judging by the number now before us, is intended to occupy a position as regards China and the neighbouring countries, somewhat similar to that which has been filled in India by the Calcutta Review. The great degree of attention that has been bestowed of late years upon the investigation of Chinese literature, antiquities, and antiquarianism, to say nothing of linguistic studies, has led to the accumulation of important stores of information, rendering some such channel of publicity as is now provided extremely desirable; and contributions of much interest may fairly be looked for from the members of the foreign community, the Chinese Customs' corps, and the missionary body, among whom a high degree of Chinese scholarship is now assiduously cultivated, and who are severally represented in the first number of the Review by papers highly creditable to their respective authors. It is to be hoped that this opening for contributions on Chinese subjects may evoke a similar degree of literary zeal to that which was displayed during the lifetime of its predecessor in the field, and that the China Review may receive the support necessary to insure its continuance. The publication is intended to appear every two months, and will form a substantial octavo magazine."

The China Review is now issued every day. The subscription is fixed at Four Dollars per annum delivered in Hongkong, or Seven Dollars Fifty Cents including postage to distant ports. The chief support of the paper is of course derived from the native community, amongst whom also are to be found the guarantee and securities necessary to place it on a business and profitable footing. The projectors, basing their estimates upon the most reliable information from the various Ports in China and Japan, from Australia, California, Singapore, Penang, Saigon, and other places frequented by the Chinese, consider themselves justified in issuing an ultimate circulation of between 3,000 and 4,000 copies. The advantages offered to advertisers are therefore unusually great, and the foreign community generally will find it to their interest to avail themselves of them.

It is said open to a paper of this description—conducted by native efforts, but progressive and anti-obstructive in tone—is almost limitless. On the one hand commands Chinese belief and interest while on the other it deserves every aid that can be given to it by foreigners. Like English journals it contains Editorials, with Local, Shipping, and Commercial News and Advertisements.

Subscription orders for either of the above may be sent to Hongkong Rates of Postage.

(Revised July 1st, 1881.)

In the following Statements and Tables the Rates are given in cents, and are, for Letters, per half ounce, for Books and Patterns, per two ounces.

Newspapers over four ounces in weight are charged as double, treble, &c., as the case may be, but such papers or packets or papers may be sent at Book Rate. Two Newspapers must not be folded together as one, nor must anything whatever be inserted except bona fide. Supplementaries. Printed matter may, however, be enclosed, if the whole be paid at Book Rate. Prices Current may be paid either as Newspapers or Books.

Commercial Papers signify such papers as, though Written by Hand, do not bear the character of an actual or personal correspondence, such as invoices, deeds, copied notes, &c. The charge on them is the same as for books, but, whatever the weight of a packet containing any partially written paper, it will not be charged less than 5 cents.

The sender of any Registered Article may accompany it with a Return Receipt on paying an extra fee of 5 cents.

The limit of weight for Books and Commercial Papers to Foreign Post Offices is 4 lbs. Patterns for such offices are limited to 6 ounces, and must not exceed these dimensions: 6 inches by 4 inches by 2 inches.

N.B. means No Registration.
